BRUM AND THE GNOME WHO COULDN'T FIND ITS WAY HOME

Today was a very exciting day in Big Town. It was the annual summer carnival and the park was full of people, all chattering happily in the sunshine as they ate hot dogs and ice cream or tried to hook a duck to win a teddy bear. BRUM was excited too. He was looking forward to the sports activities. He fancied his chances in the egg and spoon race.

BRUM wanted to watch the children's fancy dress parade first. He could already see an octopus, a clown and a giant mouse. Before the parade could start, Granny Slippers burst through the crowd shouting that one of the children was missing.

Everyone quickly split up to look for the little girl – it shouldn't be too hard to find her they thought because she was wearing fancy dress. It wasn't that easy though. BRUM searched the playground, the skateboard park and even Scruffy's kennel – but the little girl was nowhere to be seen.

As BRUM drove past Mr Brillo's house, he heard a noise and looked through the fence into the garden. There was the noise again. BRUM couldn't believe his headlights. One of the gnomes in Mr Brillo's flowerbed had just sneezed so hard its hat and beard

It wasn't a gnome at all. Beneath the fluffy white beard was a cheeky smile – BRUM had found the missing girl. He beeped excitedly as they hurried back to the carnival where the little girl was reunited with her parents. She was even in time to appear in the fancy dress parade.

The little girl had wandered off because she wanted to see if her fancy dress costume looked like the gnomes in Mr Brillo's garden. No one knew where she had gone but luckily BRUM found her. She could have got lost or hurt herself. That's why it's important to remember to hold a grown-up's hand when you go out, so they always know where you are and that you're safe.
